Introduction

How does one begin a history of a family as large as this one? Much and little is known about the family, mostly from family historians who have recorded family stories and collected information from written family records. "Much," since the bald details of birth and death dates, children, and occupations are available in original German records. "Little," since very few details are known. Very few Waidners, in relation to the number of family members, have been prominent members of society. Over the years there have been individuals who have written down family stories and saved letters from parents and grandparents and incorporated the material into written histories. In addition, there have been a few individuals in past years who have researched the family records (or their microfilmed copies) at the place of family origin: the town of Bad Herrenalb, County of Calw, State of Baden-Württemberg, Germany.

The records in Herrenalb consist of vital records recorded by the pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Herrenalb and Bernbach. The records begin in 1757 and continue to the present. There are no church records prior to 1757 due to a fire in the parsonage in 1750 that destroyed all records prior to that date. Yet there is information extending back before 1750 that might come from civil records, family histories, the records of contemporary historians, and other such diverse sources.

In recent years substantial information has become available within the United States through the LDS Church and their Family History Centers. Microfilms of the original parish records in Baden-Württemberg are available to rent ($3 per month) and view with the equipment provided at the Centers. Another immeasurably useful tool is the Internet. Not only are there transcriptions of original records but the Internet provides a ready means of almost instant communication with other people doing family research. This latter convenience has proven invaluable in preparing this record.

This record is primarily concerned with those descendents of Beatus Waidner who emigrated to the United States. There are a number of Waidners living in southern Michigan that seem likely to be descended from Christopher Frederick Waidner who settled in Mishawaka, Indiana. Further research is necessary to identify family lines and also those descendents of Beatus living in Germany.

History of Württemberg

The home of our ancestors in Europe is the town of Bad Herrenalb, a city in the county of Calw, province of Baden-Württemberg, Germany. Baden-Württemberg lies 70% in the Rhine basin and 30% in the Danube basin. Its principal river is the Neckar. Herrenalb is located about ten miles in a straight line northeast of Baden-Baden and is the northern end of the Black Forest. Adjacent to the present Evangelical Church in Herrenalb are the ruins of an early Cistercian cloister.

Württemberg's first known inhabitants were Celts and the Suebi. Early in the 3rd century the Alemanni drove the Romans beyond the Rhine and the Danube. Franks under Clovis later conquered the Alemanni in 496. In the 9th century Württemberg was incorporated with the German duchy of Swabia. In 1268 the area came under the control of the Count of Württemberg.

Württemberg was invaded by the French in 1676 and remained under French control until 1733. Alexander, who became duke in 1733, embraced the Roman Catholic faith. When Frederick II became duke in 1797 the royal house became Protestant and remained so thereafter.

In 1806 Frederick assumed the title of King and joined with Napoleon in the campaign against Prussia, Austria and Russia. After the battle of Leipzig Frederick deserted the French emperor and by a treaty with Metternick in 1813 his troops joined the Allies in marching into France. In 1815 the king joined the German Confederation. In 1866 Württemberg on behalf of Austria entered into a war with and was defeated by Prussia. In 1871 Württemberg became a member of the new German Empire. Following World War I the king abdicated.

Historic Herrenalb

Situated on the Alb river, "Herrenalb" can be loosely translated as "Men of the Alb". In the past only the nobility were addressed as "Herr". "Herr" was also the lowest nobility: Freie Herren, Freiherr, "free men". In the past, monks in most cases were younger sons of the nobility. In the oldest documents Herrenalb is named "monasterium in Alba" then "Alba dominorum". It was later called Herrenalb to distinguish it from the nunnery in Frauenalb which is downstream to the north about 5 km.

In 1149 Berthold von Eberstein and his wife Uta founded the monastery in Herrenalb 11 years after the nunnery in Frauenalb. Speculation is that the craftsmen who built the monastery also built houses during the construction of the monastery and then stayed there. What is the "right" translation? Literally, Herrenalb translates as "Men of the Alb" to distinguish it from Frauenalb, "Women of the Alb". Perhaps "Monastery at the Alb" is also a reasonable interpretation. According to Manfred Von Köhnlein, a resident of Bernbach, "Gentlemen of the Alb" or "Lords of the Alb" would be appropriate also.

Modern Herrenalb

Now known as Bad Herrenalb, the modern town is in the Black Forest (Schwarzwald) and at the end of a regional rail line that connects through Efflingen with Karlsruhe. The town is a popular conference center and the hot springs on the west side of town, which account for the "Bad" designation, are renowned mineral baths. There are Waidners living today in Herrenalb and nearby towns.

Beatus Waidner and his descendents

The Waidners of this account were from the Kullenmühle district of Herrenalb, which lies north of the town center. The district is named for a sawmill founded and operated for a time by the Kull family, who have various marriage connections with the Waidners. The mill building is still standing and in recent years has been used as a residence.

Of interest also are two monuments in the center of the village remembering men from the area who were members of the German military and who died in World Wars I and II. The WWI monument lists several Waidners with given names of Jacob and Frederick. Quite possibly these men were distant relatives of Waidners in the US who also fought in Europe in that war.

Place name

The obvious interpretation of "Bernbrook" up, "bear brook" or perhaps „berry brook“ is rejected by specialists. In the manuscript of the Bernbacher chronicle one sees it in such a way: "bear" is called medium high-German, more "ber", Swabian, more „beaer“ or, more "boer " and also "bair", i.e. boar. Breedingboar originates from the older, "bar", Swabian more "beer". Bernbrook " asked to do thus something with pig breed. Many pigs were kept in the forest areas, often the main source of income of the population.

Timeline of Berne brook (Bernbach)

1219 Berne brook together with Michelbach is mentioned in a document of the Ebersteiner.

1399 Berne brook directly mentioned in a document: Count von Eberstein sells one "game spell", to the Mark Bernhard, count of Baden

German immigration in the 19th century

The wave of German immigration to the United States in the nineteenth century was primarily driven by the lure of cheap farmland. Economic conditions and political turmoil also played a part, but the availability of affordable farmland in a climate resembling that of Germany, played the major role in drawing Germans to Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois.

Waidner emigrants from Germany

There are five Waidner families in the US descended from Germans who emigrated to the United States in the 19th century. These families can be organized in three groups: several families known to be descended from Hanss and Maria Waidner, one family who are unlikely to be related to Hanss and Maria, and another family who may be related but whose relationship, if any, has not been established.

Philipp Jacob Waidner

The first, in order of the year of immigration, is Philipp Jacob Waidner and his descendents. Philipp left Germany in 1830 with eight of his children, four sons and four daughters, following the death of his wife, Rosina Barbara Kull, in 1828. Philipp and his family settled in Baltimore, Maryland. Philipp and Rosina had 14 children, thus several of their children, most likely married with families of their own, chose to remain in Germany. Of these little is known today, mainly because of a lack of research in that direction. Philipp and his family landed in Baltimore sometime in the third quarter of the year, as attested to by entries in the Baltimore Port of Entry records. An entry for Philipp dated January, 1830, is also found in the Wüttemberg emigration records.

Philipp is buried in Western Cemetery, Baltimore, Maryland, (Lot 58, Area V - Schaeffer Lot). His tombstone carries the following inscription:

PHILLIP J. WAIDNER
Born May 30, 1775
Died June 25, 1853
A subject of the kingdom of Wüttemberg but for the past
25 years a resident of this city.

The family records of Henry A. Waidner, one of Philipp's grandsons, records this description of Philipp: "Very large man - almost 4 feet across shoulders. Employed as laborer - violent temper - married twice." The name of Phillip's second wife is unknown, although the Henry A. Waidner papers indicate it may have been Rohrbach. There are Rohrbachs buried in Western Cemetery. There does not seem to be any connection with the Schaeffer family in whose lot Philip is buried as the same papers indicate the payment for this grave site being made by a "Lewis Waitner" (Louis A. Waidner).

Johanne Maria Waidner

The second immigrant Waidner family is descended from Adam Frederick Waidner (b. 1784), whose daughter Johanne Maria Waidner (b. 1811) married Christoff Frederick Kull (b. 1803). Both Johanne and Christoff emigrated to the US and settled in Strasburg, Illinois. This family has been extensively researched by William Gaylord Kull of St. Charles, Missouri, a descendent of Johanne and Christoff.

Christopher Frederick Waidner

The third Waidner family is descended from Christopher Frederick Waidner (b. 1863), who emigrated to the US in 1882, settling in Mishawaka, Indiana. This family has also been extensively researched by Bill and Marjorie (Lutes) Waidner of Morrow, Ohio. Christopher was Bill's grandfather.

Michigan Waidners

The author knows very little about this family.

Ohio Waidners

The author knows very little about this family.

All five of these Waidner families are closely related by many marriages to the Kull families of Herrenalb, Rotensol, and Bernbach.

Louis Waidner

A fourth Waidner family in the US originated with Louis Waidner, who emigrated from Wittenberg, Germany in 1850 and settled in Allentown, Pennsylvania, following his participation in the revolution of 1848. Any connection of this family with the Waidners originating in Herrenalb and vicinity seems remote because Wittenberg is located south of Berlin, a considerable distance from Wüttemberg.

Family #7

At the very end of the century another Waidner family emigrated to the US and some of their descendents, the John C. Waidner family, now live in Jacksonville, Florida. John C. Waidner's grandfather emigrated to the US from Herrenalb. These Waidners may very well be related to the first three families, as their ancestors came from Herrenalb.

German Ports: Gateways to America

ANCESTRY MAGAZINE--March/April 1998, Vol. 16, No. 2.

By Raymond S. Wright III, Ph.D., A.G.

The majority of emigrants to America from central and central-eastern Europe passed through the ports of Bremen and Hamburg. German port records specified emigrants' birthplaces or residences, facts often missing in passenger lists filed at American ports of entry. A knowledge of German port records is essential for family historians in search of emigrant ancestors from areas that fell under the German, Austrian, and Russian empires of the past. It was not until 1830 that the trickle of emigration from Germany began to increase dramatically. Before that date, almost all German emigrants embarked for America from Rotterdam, Amsterdam, Antwerp, or Le Havre. The constitution of the German Confederation (1815) guaranteed citizens of all German states freedom of movement, including emigration to other countries. Germans could not, however, simply pack up and leave. They were required to seek release from citizenship in their homeland. This practice helped officials identify those who might be leaving with unfulfilled military or other obligations. To further assist the police in all German states in identifying those who were leaving, port authorities were required to identify all passengers departing from their ports for foreign destinations. The resulting records provide modern family historians with important facts about their immigrant ancestors. This article focuses on records created in the German ports of Hamburg and Bremen.

HAMBURG

With 1.7 million inhabitants (as of 1996) and massive port facilities that handle about 11,000 ships annually (Statistisches Landesamt Hamburg Web site: <http://www.hamburg.de>), Hamburg is Germany's largest port. The city is not on a sea coast, but on the banks of one of Europe's major rivers, the Elbe, sixty-eight miles south of Cuxhaven, where the Elbe flows into the North Sea. Hamburg was a key city in the medieval German Hansa, a trading union that linked central and eastern European cities for their mutual protection and benefit. Hamburg played a key role in Bismarck's plan to make Germany the foremost industrial power in Europe. During the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, the city's wharfs berthed ships that plied all of the oceans of the world, especially ships that carried products to and from the New World. Hamburg has a long history of independence and is today an independent city-state in the Federal Republic of Germany. Until about 1850, few emigrants traveled to new homelands via Hamburg. Rotterdam, Antwerp, Le Havre, and Bremen/ Bremerhaven were the busiest emigrant embarkation points.

Passenger Lists

Prior to 1845, Hamburg city ordinances discouraged shipping companies from soliciting emigrants bound for foreign countries (J. M. Lappenberg, Sammlung der Verordnungen der freien und Hanse-Stadt Hamburg seit 1814, vol. xi, Hamburg: Johann August Meißner, 1832-, p. 104; vol. xv, p. 110; vol. xix, pp. 42-48). Legislation by the city council beginning in 1845 set up an administrative system that, by 1848, was producing passenger lists and passport registers that documented most emigrants embarking for other countries from Hamburg (Lappenberg, vol. xx, p. 253). The earliest surviving passenger lists begin in 1850 and span the years to 1934. The post-1854 lists are indexed, but the 1850-1855 lists provide an alphabetical listing of passengers for each year. After 1855, two types of passenger lists were kept: indirect lists for emigrants sailing to other European ports to board ships for their destination countries; and direct lists for those sailing aboard ships leaving Hamburg that carried passengers to their final destination in another country.

Passport Applications

Hamburg passport applications cover the years 1851 to 1929, and each volume of applications contains an index. Those applying for passports in Hamburg were residents of Hamburg-including many emigrants who came to the city to earn money for their passage-and persons who, for some reason, arrived in Hamburg without a passport that would provide clearance for leaving the port. Male emigrants, for example, were required to have papers certifying that they were not eligible for (or had fulfilled) the required military service in their homeland. The passenger lists and passport applications are available on microfilm at the Family History Library in Salt Lake City or one of its many branches, the LDS family history centers. They can be found by looking in the Family History Library Catalog under the locality "Hamburg" and the topic "Emigration and Immigration."

Residence and Citizenship Records

Many emigrants arrived in Hamburg with their ship's ticket in hand, purchased from an agent in or near their hometowns. Others arrived without a ticket, hoping to earn enough money in this huge city to pay for their passage. Prospective emigrants planning to work in Hamburg were required to register with the police. Some of these persons may have actually applied to become citizens of Hamburg in order to enhance their ability to practice a trade. The Family History Library houses microfilm collections of residence permits and citizenship applications. Both records are indexed. Meldeprotokolle (residence registrations) can be found in the Family History Library Catalog under the locality "Hamburg" and the topic "Occupations." The applications are divided into categories based on the position of the applicant: Arbeiter und Dienstboten (Laborers and Servants) 1843-1890; Gesellen (Journeymen) 1850-1867; Gesinde (Household Servants/Employees) 1834-1843; and Handwerker und Fabrikarbeiter (Tradesmen and Factory Workers) 1837-1868. "Citizenship" is the topic in the Family History Library Catalog under which microfilmed citizenship applications from Hamburg are found. Each applicant was required to produce documents from his or her hometown documenting birth, occupation, and status before arriving in Hamburg. These are the records available on microfilm in the Family History Library and its LDS family history centers. The documents in the collection bear the title Heimatprotokolle (Records of Personal Origin) and cover the years 1826-1864.

Additional Records

Passenger lists, passport records, Meldeprotokolle, and Heimatprotokolle normally provide an individual's name, birth date, birthplace, and occupation. Many additional records, not available outside of Hamburg's state archives (Staatsarchiv Hamburg, ABC Strasse 19A, 20354 Hamburg, Germany), provide information about persons who lived in Hamburg before emigrating to the United States. The careful researcher who uses the inventory available from the State Archives of Hamburg (Paul Flamme, Peter Gabrielsson, and Klaus-Joachim Lorenzen-Schmidt, Kommenterte Übersicht über die Bestände des Staatsarchivs der Freien und Hansestadt Hamburg, Hamburg: Verlag Verein für Hamburgsiche Geschichte, 1995) can discover additional records and order copies of documents that may contain information about emigrant ancestors. Probably the most valuable records to examine fall under the category of Meldewesen (Registration of Residents). Both the citizenship and residence registration records just discussed come from this segment of the collections in the state archives.

BREMEN

Bremen is similar to its rival port of Hamburg in a number of ways: it was founded in the ninth century; it was an important member of the Hansa and is an independent city-state today; it served as the embarkation point for millions of emigrants from central and eastern Europe bound for America; and it's on the banks of a large river that flows into the North Sea. The city is on the banks of the Weser river, some sixty miles southwest of Hamburg and about thirty miles south of its daughter city, the port of Bremerhaven at the mouth of the Weser. As silt on the bed of the Weser began to reduce access to Bremen's docks, the mayor and senate of Bremen purchased land near the mouth of the river from the King of Hannover in 1825 for a new port for Bremen's ships and merchants. By 1830 the newly constructed harbor, Bremerhaven ("Bremen's harbor"), was ready to receive its first customer, the American schooner Draper.

Embarkation for America

Bremerhaven soon became the embarkation point for most emigrants leaving Germany through Bremen. Although a massive re-routing of the Weser above Bremerhaven eventually solved the problem of accumulating silt, Bremerhaven remained the busiest emigrant port in Germany. The ports of Bremen and Bremerhaven today are much smaller than the port of Hamburg, with a combined population of 683,096 (as of 1993), and carry much less traffic than the port on the Elbe. In past years, however, Bremen and Bremerhaven consistently outperformed Hamburg as emigrant embarkation ports. A survey of several volumes (1, 13, 24, and 35) of Germans to America (Ira Glazier and P. William Filby, eds., Wilmington, Del.: Scholarly Resources, 1988-) for the years 1850-51, 1859-60, 1870, and 1880 shows 38% of the emigrant ships arriving at Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports of North America were from Bremen/Bremerhaven. Hamburg accounted for only about seventeen percent of ships' arrivals, nearly the same as Liverpool (sixteen percent), and was only six percent ahead of the French port of Le Havre (eleven percent). Over eighty percent of the ships arriving with German immigrants on board during the years surveyed came from these four ports. Peter Marschalck, author of an inventory of emigration records in Bremen archives, concluded that during the past two centuries, over seven million individuals emigrated through the ports of Bremen/Bremerhaven, about ninety percent of them to homes in the United States (Peter Marschalck, Inventar der Quellen zur Geschichte der Wanderungen, Besonders der Auswanderung, in Bremer Archiven, Bremen: Selbstverlag des Staatsarchivs der freien und Hansestadt Bremen, 1986, pp. 15, 49). The same author's charts show that about fifty percent of these emigrants-3.5 million-were from German states that in 1871 became united as the German Empire. According to the Dictionary of American Immigration History (Francesco Cordasco, ed., Methuchen, N.J.: Scarecrow Press, 1990, p. 242), "Between 1820 and 1980 . . . nearly seven million Germans have immigrated to the United States (fifteen percent of all U.S. immigrants during the period), more than from any other country." Dr. Marschalck's figures cover only the period 1832-1958 (Inventar, pp. 47, 51), and yet it is clear from these figures and Cordasco's statement that probably half of the German emigrants to America embarked from Bremen/ Bremerhaven.

Passenger Lists

The city council of Bremen passed ordinances in 1832 that required companies transporting emigrants to file a list of all passengers with the city's emigration department. These contained emigrants' names, ages, occupations, and places of origin. Between 1875 and 1909, the passenger lists dating from 1832 were destroyed by city archivists for lack of storage space, and the lists covering emigration during the years 1910-1920 were destroyed during Allied bombing raids on Bremen during the Second World War (Inventar p. 10). Passenger lists for 1921-1939 are available at the Handelskammer Archiv in Bremen (Haus Schutting, Am Markt 13, 28195 Bremen). They are not indexed, but archives staff will search them upon request. Other records can be used as substitutes for the missing passenger lists. Some Bremen/ Bremerhaven ships turned in copies of the detailed lists prepared for officials in Bremen to U.S. officials at the port of debarkation. Gary Zimmerman and Marion Wolfert have indexed Bremen/ Bremerhaven passenger lists turned in at New York in their four-volume work Lists of Passengers Bound from Bremen to New York, 1847-67, with Places of Origin (Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., 1985-88). Germans to America also provides places of origin as they are listed in passenger lists filed at Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports. Near the end of the nineteenth century, the number of Germans emigrating through Bremen/

Bremerhaven declined and the number of Russians, Poles, and other Slavic groups increased. Among them were the so-called "Germans from Russia," descendants of German emigrants who founded ethnic German colonies along the lower Volga and northern shores of the Black Sea, initially at the invitation of Empress Catherine the Great (herself a German). Many of these emigrants will be found in the new series from Ira Glazier, Migration from the Russian Empire: Lists of Passengers Arriving at the Port of New York (Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., 1995-).

Other Record Sources

The city archives of both Bremen and Bremerhaven house records that help fill the gap created by the loss of the passenger lists. Unfortunately, the Family History Library has few of these records. Family historians can write to archives in Bremen and Bremerhaven to obtain copies of records about their ancestors. If researchers have found ancestors recorded in passenger lists registered at U.S. ports, for example, the date of arrival and the name of the ship will help them find more facts about their ancestors and the nature of their voyages in records available in Bremen and Bremerhaven. The Bremen State Archives-Staatsarchiv der freien Hansestadt Bremen (Am Staatsarchiv 1, 28203 Bremen, Germany)-has duplicates of passenger lists from several ships involved in court cases. A researcher could supply the name of the ship and the date of its arrival to the archives' staff with the request that a search of the archives' inventory be made to determine if a passenger list for a desired ship still exists. Providing the same information to the Deutsches Schifffahrtsmuseum (Hans-Scharoun-Platz 1, 27568 Bremerhaven, Germany) may turn up the ship's log for the voyage that brought ancestors to America. This maritime museum depicts and preserves the history of German shipping from the Middle Ages to the present. Among its collections are ships' logs, photographs, and plans of German emigrant ships.

If ancestors were born or died on board an emigrant ship, the Bremen Seemannsamt maintained records which may be helpful - they recorded births and deaths aboard Bremen ships. These manuscripts are preserved in the Bremen State Archives; entries often list the place of origin of children's parents or of deceased persons: Archives' Register Number 4,24-D.5 contains births for the years 1868-1883 and 1903-1911; Register Number 4,24-D.6 covers certificates of birth and death received from 1875-1935 and 1936-1941 (but only for names beginning with H, K, and V); Register Number 4,24-D.7 contains deaths for 1845-1875; Register Number 4,24-D.8 has deaths for 1834-1937; after 1850 these volumes are the index to the death protocols found in 4,24-D.9 (1850-1937) and death entries from ships' logs found in 4,24-D.12 (1876-1941). If ancestors worked their way to America as crew members, the Seemannsamt should be checked as well-they also maintained copies of crew lists for Bremen ships that often include a person's place of birth. Researchers writing to the city archives for information about births, deaths, or service as crew members should provide the names of persons sought and the dates of birth or death or service, if they are known.

Another important collection of records in the city archives of Bremen is Entlassungen von Bewohnern des Landgebiets aus dem bremischen Staatsverband wegen Auswanderung 1854-1906 (Register Number 4, 17-33.D.8). These are records releasing inhabitants of the Bremen region from citizenship and granting them permission to emigrate. Among them are the actual applications for release from citizenship. These files may contain information about applicants' places of origin and the names and ages of other family members. These are only examples of the many records that recorded emigrants who passed through Bremen or lived and worked there for a time before leaving for the United States. The best means of learning about all of these records is to study Dr. Marschalck's Inventar der Quellen zur Geschichte der Wanderungen, besonders der Auswanderung, in Bremer Archiven. The book is still in print and is available from the Staatsarchiv Bremen.

The Bremerhaven City Archives-Seestadt Bremerhaven Stadtarchiv (Postfach 21 03 60, 27524 Bremerhaven, Germany)-also preserves records that may identify ancestors who emigrated from Bremen/ Bremerhaven. Perhaps the most important are records listed in the archives' inventory under the heading Meldewesen. Many of them are indexed and were begun in the decade 1850-1860 and recorded persons living in the area as late as 1920-1930. These are records of persons moving into or away from Bremerhaven and its environs. If ancestors stayed in the Bremerhaven area to earn money toward their passage, or to wait an extended time for space to become available on a ship, they may have been registered. Archives' staff will search the indexes for names of ancestors who may have emigrated through Bremen/Bremerhaven. Researchers should supply the emigrant ancestor's name and approximate date of departure. If more information is known-family members, occupation, etc.-these facts should also be included in the request for a search of the archives' indexes.

The name "Waidner" and its origins

Waidner is an occupation name meaning "dyer" of cloth and leather, and is associated with the waid plant originally grown as a source of indigo dye. The name is thought to have originated in northern Switzerland, although as an occupation name it may have originated in several places.

One line of research suggests that about the year 1550 some number of German speaking Swiss adopted the teachings of Martin Luther. Their neighbors who remained loyal to the Catholic Church disagreed strongly with the Lutheran teachings and the Waidners (and others) were forced to leave Switzerland. They emigrated to southern Germany by descending the Rhine Valley, settling in what is now the state of Baden-Württemberg.

The name Waidner has been traced to the Tyrol where it is identified about 1450 with two brothers and a coat of arms. This coat of arms, showing a steer rampant on a field of green, is that of a farmer and not of a person employed in the dying of cloth or leather, and so it may be presumed that the family name's originated in the middle ages.

Notes for FREDERICKA STRAEVEL:

LOUIS AUGUST WAIDNER, which is the name we shall use hereafter, married a second time. On 26 Mar 1828 he m. FREDERICKA STRAEVEL, b. 18 Sep 1808, d. 05 May 1898. There are three versions of Fredericka's origin:

(a) From the Louis A. Waidner (2) family record: "Fredericka not German; born in Alsace-Lorraine. Her mother died on boat and she was taken care of by Mr. Waesche, who brought her up. She lived on Franklin Street. She lived to be 91. Gentle and quiet."

(b) From the Henry A. Waidner family record: "Fredericka born in Württemberg. Came to the US when she was about 8 years of age. Her Mother deserted her in Hagerstown. She was apprenticed to a family named Waesche who lived on Lexington Street, near Uncle Gideon (Gideon Numsen). Was treated kindly. Father disappeared."

(c) George Louis Shaw (2) recalling in 1977 the story as told to him by his father who was Fredericka's grandson: "Fredericka emigrated from Germany and later her mother "loaned her out" (indentured servant) and fortunately she served the kindly Waesche family. She was abandoned by her mother; her father, unknown."

The 1820 Federal Census reveals Frederick Waesche, male under 45 whose household consisted of 2 males under 10, 1 male under 16, 1 female under 26 and spouse under 45. The female, noted as under 26, could have been Fredericka as she was about 12 years of age at that census time.

George Louis Shaw (2) writes: "The family of Louis A. and Fredericka Waidner lived in one of two, owned, small, contiguous houses on Columbia Avenue near Fremont for many years. All the Shaw tribe were born there, also Louis A.

(2), Henry A., Frederick A., Amelia and Mary Waidner were under the roof (at one time) of that small house. Where they ever squeezed rooms, beds, etc. and lodged all of these people is a great mystery. I also heard that Fredericka kept a small milk store in the basement. Fredericka deserved a 'crown of glory. She worked and worked - day and night - raising both Waidner and Shaw families - how it all was ever accomplished is beyond belief."

About the year 1888 - John George Shaw and Amelia bought a larger and better older house a block away from their old two houses - then all moved to the new address at 666 Columbia. Fredericka at that time sold the 2 older houses - I think for about $1,600, cheap at that time - and moved with John George and Amelia. After World War I property in the area had a minor boom - and - behold - those two small houses wonce owned by Louis A. and Fredericka - now owned by others - sold for $20,000 - and a movie theater was built on the site. Time was against the Waidners."

George Louis Shaw (2) writes again in 1978: "Louis A. Waidner engaged in dairying in Baltimore City and he pastured cows on rented land, also had a milk wagon or two out serving routes. I recall my father's uncle, Louis A. Waidner (2) saying: "as a boy I drove one milk wagon and had a customer, an old Quaker lady who ordered ½ cents worth of milk each morning and another ½ cents worth in the afternoon.". Louis A Waidner did will the two houses and about $10,000 (a small fortune in those days) when he died, and, according to his will, my great grandmother, Fredericka, received the two houses and the money was to be invested in US Government bonds - she to received the income for her lifetime."

Notes for THOMAS MOULDING BEERS:

OBITUARY for Thomas Moulding Beers (1)

Delavan, Wis.-Thomas Moulding Beers, 86, died in Delavan on Saturday, January 2nd. Mr. Beers was born September 11, 1912, in Chicago, the son of Sylvester Piper Beers and Sarah Moulding Beers. He graduated from Evanston High School and in 1934 from Dartmouth College. He married Mary Ella Waidner on September 16, 1939, in Wilmette Illinois. In World War II he served as Lt. Commander in the US Navy in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters. After college he worked at R. R. Donnelley and Sons in Chicago and was Vice President of Sales in 1959 when he moved to Washington, DC. There he was Vice President and Associate Secretary of the National Geographic Society until his retirement in 1976. As a volunteer for seven years with the Nature Conservancy, he used direct mail to increase that organization's membership fivefold. In 1995 he and his wife returned to Delavan Lake where they met in 1931 and had spent many summers. Mr. Beers was an avid birder, sailor, and conservationist, a former member of the Chevy Chase Club, University Club of Washington, Chicago Athletic Club, Delavan Lake Yacht Club, and a former Director of the Inland Lakes Yachting Association. He is survived his wife of 59 years, Mary; two daughters, Dr. Susan B. Betzer (Peter) of St. Petersburg, FL, Nancy W. Beers of Chevy Chase, MD; two sons, Dr. Thomas M. Beers, Jr. (Jane of San Diego, CA, Richard W. Beers (Kay) of Delavan Lake; six grandchildren and nine nieces and nephews.

A memorial service will be held at 11 am on Saturday, January 9th at the United Church of Christ in Delavan. Private burial. The Family asks that memorials be sent to either the Delavan Lake Sailing School, PO Box 482, Delavan, WI 53115, or to the Nature Conservancy.

Betzer Funeral Home in Delavan is serving the Beers family. 414-728-2500

In memory of TM Beers, by his son, Richard W. Beers.

We had a memorable holiday season.

On January 2 at 9:15 pm Dad left this world for the next regatta. He was attended by my brother, Tom Jr., sister, Susan, me, and the angel who promised to stay with him till death do they part for 59 years and 109 days, my Mother, Mary. His passing was VERY peaceful, and he left with a almost undetectable sigh. As brother Tom said, it was an honor to see the gift of life passing away.

Dad was a sailor and bit of a contrarian. He chose the worst snowstorm in a decade to set his sails and go out with a blaze of snowflakes and wind. No doubt he was belly aching about why we didn't have the spinnaker set already. After he breathed his last, Mom said "Tommy, this is your new race to sail and you are at the mark first again."

That night (Saturday) the snowstorm ended and Sunday was cold and clear. He'd say "Let's get on with it!"

Before he left, we had another concern. When Mom heard from the Dr. last Monday, a week ago that Dad had to leave the hospital and go to the nursing home, she took it very hard. During a conversation with my sisters (Susan and Nancy), she complained of chest pains. Susie (a physician in St. Petersburg, FL.) took her to the hospital as a patient, not as a rider in the ambulance to take Dad to the nursing home. Two days later she had an angioplasty, removing some plaque, and she recovered to be with Dad. At first we thought she had just a broken heart, but there was some biology behind it.

We are going to have a memorial service in Delavan on Sat. January 9 at 11 am. Dad's body will be cremated this week, and his ashes will be placed in the gravesite he and Mom bought in the 1960s near his childhood friends.

For those who are so inclined, we would appreciate donations to be made to the Delavan Lake Sailing School, as it is a tax deductible donation to an educational institution (PO Box 482, Delavan, WI, 53115), or the Nature Conservancy national headquarters where he, as a volunteer, put together a drive which increased that membership by fivefold in three years between 1976 and 1979. Sorry I don't have their address but it is in Alexandria, VA.

Reading this message, however, would be good enough for him.

Mom and Dad met on Delavan Lake in 1931 and were fortunate to come full circle back to this spiritual home.

Two years ago I got him on board my E scow. He sailed these boats from 1939 to 1965. He skipped a special race named after the man who taught him how to sail in the 1920's, and won it. He didn't have a lot of competition, but then 90% of success in life is just showing up. This year my 13 year old Mary Katherine sailed the same boat in the same race and won it. She was so proud to have her name on this big silver vase with her Granddad. This also allowed him to claim the title of oldest active skipper at age 84.

He is a hard act to follow, but follow we will. I am reminded of the Dan Fogelberg song "Leader of the Band" when I think of his passing. The refrain (at least I think it is called the refrain) goes like this:

The leader of the band is tired and his eyes are growing old, but his blood runs through my instrument and his song is in my soul.
My life is a poor attempt to imitate the man. I am the living legacy of the leader of the band. WE are the living legacy of the leader of the band.

It's interesting that when I played the song one morning, my brother said he remembered it and thought about Dad when it was first released. I remember listening to it in Magill Hall at Illinois Wesleyan Univ. around 1973 and thinking I would like to remember it when my Dad grew old.

So it was a magical moment and a wonderful ending to a fantastic life. We are grateful for the gift of physical life he gave us as well as the gift of love of life.

About this Document

In 1996 John T. Waidner, Jr., initially transcribed this document from a similar document prepared by John T. Waidner, Sr. in the early 1990s into a Microsoft Word file. Since then the document has been updated as family history has been discovered and new relations located. This revision history has been included to assist with locating changes in the document.

Revisions

02 May 1999 Added the descendents of William Francis Waidner following a short email correspondence with T. Christopher Waidner. Mr. Waidner provided the clues and a search of John T. Sr.'s notes located unpublished information he'd been collecting for incorporation, but had not done so for reasons unknown.

04 May 1999 Added descendents of Florence A. Shaw from unpublished notes of John T. Waidner, Sr. Also, added data supplied by T. Christopher Waidner during telephone conversation regarding his siblings. Corrected the middle name of his Great Grandfather from "Francis" to Frederick."

June 1999 During the month of June this history was transcribed into Family Tree Maker. That effort greatly improved the quality of the history in that details found in John T. Waidner's files could be easily added to the record without considerations as to the length of the resulting document. In addition, and probably most importantly, information sources could easily be referenced and cross-linked to the data item. During the summer months of 1999, contact was made with several other family history researchers. Among these are Frederick J. Kull (who pronounces his name "cull") of Tucker, Georgia, and William G. Kull (pronounced "cool," which is closer to the original German) of St. Louis, Missouri. Substantial information has been shared between John T. Waidner Jr. and these two gentlemen to the benefit of all three family historians.

10 February 2000 Another family researcher joined John Waidner, Fred Kull, and Bill Kull: Manfred Kölnlein, a resident of Bernbach. Through Manfred's efforts, the research material prepared by the Reverend Hermann Waidner in Germany has been obtained from Herr Waidner's family and included in this record. This information is extensive. It begins with Beatus Waidner, b. ca. 1590 in Dobel, and extends through nine generations of his descendents to the beginning in about 1830 of the great German migration to the United States.

27 March 2000 Added ancestor trees for key individuals. Revised introduction and added credits and sources. A note: the Reverend Hermann Waidner, aged 94, died in February, 2000. Waidner family researchers owe much to this man for his efforts tracing the early roots of the Waidners of Herrenalb, Rotensol, and Dobel.
